I've have three children, and I'm on a low income. I've been trying to pay off my credit card but I'm already behind on other bills. I haven't been able to pay my council tax in three months and received payment reminders from my energy provider. What should I do?

First work out how much you owe - make a list of who you need to pay each month and how much. Make sure you are getting all the income and benefits that you are entitled to, including help with child care or school meals.

Add up your essential living costs and take these away from your income. Any money you have spare can be put towards your debts. Citizens Advice's budgeting tool, found on its website, can help.

Your council tax, rent or mortgage, and energy are priority debts as there can be serious consequences if you don't pay them. These must be paid first. Act quickly - contact your council to arrange an affordable council tax payment plan, and your landlord or mortgage provider and energy supplier to help you sort out payment plans that work for you. To cut your future bills you should make sure you're on the best deal you can get. For further help working out your budget, negotiating with creditors or checking which benefits you're entitled to, contact your nearest Citizens Advice.
